known what it was to be confined for weeks at a time upon a couch of painful disease, nor even to lose the vigorous action of mind or limb which had enabled him, through the many years of his business life, to perform his daily tasks unaided and unadvised.

It was a year ago that Mr. Keenan first saffered the hand of disease, to take hold upon him. At that time he was stricken down by an aggravated attack of rhe-man-sism, which robbed him of the use of his lower limbs and of both his hands. For fally six weeks he lay on his couch, a helpless victim of the dread disease, and all that time he will be suffered intense pain in the affected portions of his body. He could not move himself upon his bed, and all that he are had to be fed to him by those in attendance. He had about despaired of ever gaining release from the clutches of the frightful disease, when one morning his attention was drawn to an advertisement in a morning paper, of a remedy for rheumatism. The story of what succeeded this casaal, glance at a medicine advertisement can best be told in the words of Mr. Keenan himself, who where asked for an explanamatism, and the words of Mr. Keenan himself, who where asked for an explanamatism, and the words of Mr. Keenan himself, who where asked for an explanamatism, and the physician unable to recould not possibly be a relief. I had no faith in patent medicines, and when I say in a paper the advertisement of Williams Pink Pills I was induced to try them only had been companied to take the pills and it was only a short time until the rheumatism had entirely left my hands, and I had able to walk about the house without assistance. In about two weeks more I was entirely free from the disease left me I have not felt the least sign of its return, and I can truthfully say that I now enjoy as free use of my limbs as a precaution against a return of the rheumatism. From the time that the last trace of the disease left me I have not felt the least sign of its return, and I can truthfully say that I now enjoy as free us foreign diplomatic service, as every American boy knows, is subject to frequent changes, as our representatives abroad are usually recalled when a new administration takes command at Washington. Other ministers and attaches are sent out, in many cases lawyers and business men ignorant of the etiquette of courts.

THE COWBOY DIPLOMAT. Interest of an Empress in a Minister from

Their misadventures in their new field of action furnish many a racy anecdote for the amusement of their friends and themselves. One told of a former American minister at Vienna is, we believe, authentic.

Mr. X- had held the position for many years, and had every reason to regard his diplomatic and social career with complacency. His party was defeated, however, in a presidential election, and he soon informed his Austrian friends that he was to be superseded by a certain Capt, Y-, "a wild man from the west." He probably showed a little jealousy when he laughingly spoke of the untamed character of his successor, describing him as "a cow-

Capt. Y- in due course of time appeared-a quiet, matter-of-fact manand the day after his arrival received the usual instructions from Mr. Xas to his reception at court. "I will present you to the emperor tomorrow," said the retiring minister. "You have a dress suit?" "That will be all right," said the new official. "When will the empress receive me?" "The empress will not receive you," was the curt reply. "She receives no foreign ministers. It is not here as at other courts. You will not be presented

"But," persisted Y-, gently, "I think I had better call. It would only be civil."

"She receives no foreigners," answered X--, sharply. "I have been here for years, and I never have been presented. "I think I shall leave my card," insisted Y-, doggedly. "I have al-ways been taught that I should leave a card after a lady entertained me, and I lunched with the empress yesterday." "You-what?" shouted X-, staring at the man to find if he was mad. "I took luncheon with her yesterquietly replied the newcomer. "An hour after I arrived one of the equerries of the court called on me, and told me that her majesty had done me the honor to invite me to luncheon. So I dressed and went out to the summer palace." "Who was there?" asked the puzzled diplomat, suspecting that Y- had been the victim of a hoax. "Guly the empress and two of her ladies." He looked at X- with twinkling eyes. "She is very fond of horses, it seems, and she asked me many extraordinary questions about bucking ponies and rounding up cattle. She asked if I had my lasso with me. At last she told me that she had heard I was a wild western cowboy, and was a little disappointed to find me like any othergentleman. Idon't know," looking at X- with a significant smile, "to whom I owe the reputation which procured me the honor of this invitation from her majesty."

X- stammered and was silent, but he had manliness afterward to tell the man from the wildest west he could bear himself becomingly before kings. -Youth's Companion.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION. Weekly Cleaning Better Than an Annual

Upheaving. It is very much better for the furniture and all your rooms to be treated systematically all the year than to have one annual upheaving. Except in the matter of carpet-cleaning and repapering it is quite possible to do away with the spring or fall cleaning by simply doing one room thoroughly every week. If your house has six rooms, each room will get a good cleaning every six weeks; if they are ten, and you are restricted in help, they will get over-nauled only four or five times a year, but in either case there will be no domestic revolution, no complete upheaval of the lares and penates. It is very much better for the furniture, etc., to be treated systematically all the year round in this fashion. Linoleum oil and floor cloth, washed and polished in the same way as stained floors, only with a thinner preparation, will look better and last much longer than if merely washed in a slovenly manner for six months, and then elaborately scrubbed or otherwise treated with drastic remedies to remove stains and marks which have been allowed o eat into the material until it bemes a difficulty to remove them. The ame remark naturally applies to pol-

A little done every week keeps the furniture in much better condition than spasmodic operations; it can be performed with such a variety of preparations that the difficulty lies in the choosing. One of the most satisfactory polishes is also the simplest-namely, a mixture of linseed oil and vinegar, kept in a well-corked bottle and shaken Every Subscriber and use; the furniture must be lusted first; then the mixture can be Every Friend to be a applied over a small surface, polishing quickly with old silk rags. This somewhat primitive but efficacious compound has a double advantage; it does not form a cake over the wood, even with long use (which cake invariably produces cracks) and the combined oil and vinegar removes many stains and grease marks that ordinary polishes do not touch. Mirrors and lookinggiasses should be cleaned as a regular thing every time a room is done; nothing looks so bad as a stained surface to a glass of any description, and a little spirits of wine judiciously applied with n soft rag will remove the most obstinate marks; picture frames and books, too, should be well dusted, and the cupboard shelves dusted and relined with clean paper.-Chicago Inter Ocean.

-To make pastry successfully, it is important that it should not be much handled, and that the bands should be cool. woman who finds herself at the top of a flight of stairs, breathless and exhausted, gasping and blowing in a distressing manner, has undergone an awful physical strain. The heart and mach have been made to do double duty, that of the lungs and their own combined, with more often only one-half of the room required to do it in, from the compressing force of the stays. Consequently, one of the most graceful actions that a woman is called on most often to illustrate is transformed, by the ignorance of a few rules of physical culture, into one of the most crous and sorry sights imaginable

The woman who clutches her skirts in front midway between the hip and the knee beads her body from the hips almost in a bow and drags up, laborionsly exhausting her vital energies at every step, a making a foolish and a ridiculous mistake, for which she suffers severely long before arriving at

of the handsomest pictures parat ed of feminine beauty is that of a lovely woman ascending a fine, old stair case. Her slender figure is gracefully erect, her lovely face on the column like throat turned half over her shoulder. The arms are bare, and droop with perfectly natural grace to her knees, where the silken skirts are daintily lifted to allow the free play of tiny, slippered feet. The lady is in the act of ascending, and seems to float upward, the personification of grace it-

One imagines that he can see her catch her silken skirt at either knee, lifting It just to the ankle, expand her chest, hold her shoulders well back and her arms down. SOURCES OF CONTAGION. The Breath of Sick Persons Laden with Deadly Germs.

A little girl, six years of age, was taken by her mother into a street car. The car was crowded, and a delicatelooking man lifted the little one to his knees. She sat there a moment, then slid down and clung to her mother's skirts After they had left the car, she said:

"Mamma, I couldn't sit there; that man breathed in my face and made me sick." For days afterward she complained that she could not get that dreadful taste cut of her mouth. In due time she was attacked with typhoid fever and died. There was no question whatever in the mind of the physician that the man who took the child up was in the first stages of typhoid. Believing that this disease could be transmitted by the breath, he took pains to make experiments. A sufferer from typhoic breathed a number of times into a glass vessel containing sterilized water. From this water cultures were made, and the true typhoid bacilli developed in enorous quantities. It is generally supposed that typhoid is due to contaminated water, but ex periments of this sort have made it certain that the breath, especially if thrown out suddenly as by coughing is likely to be laden with the deadly germs. Indeed, physicians are become ing well satisfied that the lungs are constantly at work trying to extract from the blood and throw out all poisonous ingredients. This being the case, those who inhale the breath of a person suffering from almost any disease are liable to receive the germs and become infected with the same malady.-N. Y.

"If one will stop to consider," said

"I think the funniest story I ever heard touching on the horse was told me by an old minister who went out on the plains of Nebraska to establish a few missions among the Indians and settlers. It appears that after he had been in the state a few weeks he was waited upon by a long, gaunt fellow who wanted to know if the Gospel leader wanted to join the Brownsville Horsethief club. He was a little surprised at the suggestion at first, but upon being informed that the objects of the club were not exactly what the title suggested and that it was an organization for the purpose of protecting members' horses from thieves concluded to join and put up his five dollars admission fee. In a few days he received a notification that there would be a meeting of the club at a place named and that his presence was

"He was on hand, and as he was the lust one to enter the door was closed behind him and locked. The president of the club banged his fist on the desk and rising said: 'Members of the Horsethief club, Si Barton's trown mare has been stolen. I hereby appoint Jack Thomas and Jim Bowers to go on the trail and report next Saturday. The meetin' is hereby adjourned."

"With as little ceremony as it was opened the meeting broke up and the members departed without further comment. The minister was prone to make inquiries regarding the method of dealing with the issue before the use, but received no satisfactory information. On the morning of the following Saturday he was notified to be present again and complied. Arriving at the meeting place he found the same men there again. Jack Thomas and Jim Bowers were there also, having come back the night before. Again the president put his fist on the table with A bang and called the meeting to order with: 'We are now ready to hear the report of the committee of two.' Bowers got up, threw a cud of tobacco behind him and answered: 'We met the horsethieves two miles this side of the Kansas line, all of which is respectivesubmitted.' 'The meeting is adjourned,' howled the president with an- sale at the regulation price of ten cents other smash at the desk, and the members filed out perfectly contented.

A CALF IN THE ROAD. Its Disastrous Effect Upon a Coasting

A calf, a bicycle and the young lady were the principal actors in a little comedy a few days since, the scene of which was laid in the vicinity of New

The young lady and the wheel were bowling merrily along one afternoon when they came to the top of a hill, which offered a fine opportunity for a coast. Accordingly, the young lady's feet went up on the rests and the wheel started for an untrammeled cruise down the incline. The coast was clear with the exception of a calf standing inoffensively in the road about half way down the hill.

Had it been a mouse, in all probability the fair cyclist would have at once dismounted and gone around by another route or stopped into some house for assistance, but being only a harmless calf that would in all probability make room at once at the ap proach of the young lady and her wheel the latter kept steadily on.

The calf, however, apparently had different views concerning the right of way and calmly stood his ground. The wheel had now gained quite an impetus, and despite the frantic efforts of its rider it struck the astonished ealf with n vim. and in some unaccountable manner the young lady brought up on her hands and knees, with her head between the calf's hind legs. This was too much for the latter, as well as for the fair cyclist, and he moved off in double-quick time, leaving the wheel and its owner to reorganize and continue.-- Utica Daily Press.

Electric Lights in Theaters. It is believed that the first electric light installed in an American theater was a Jablochkoff candle, used as a tocusing lamp in the old California theater, in Bush street, San Francisco in 1878. The managers of the theater at that time were Messrs, Barton and Hill, Gen. Barton and Frank Lawler The play was "Antony and Cleopatra," Rose Eytinge and Cyril Searle taking the leading parts. A. H. Reece was the engineer in charge of the work. Seventeen years have worked a complete rev olution in theatrical lighting, and today there is not a theater in the United States which could dispense with the electric light .- N. Y. Sun.

PATENTS ARE VERY EXPENSIVE. Cost of Exclusive Rights for an Intricate Invention is Exceedingly High.

The government has recently granted two patents, which cover probably the most intricate and complex machine ever constructed. It is claimed that before the first machine was perfected the company constructing it had expended $1,300,000. The first application filed contained 204 meets of drawings, having over 1,000 separate views. During the eight years the case was pending in the office before altowance the number of sheets was reduced to 163. When it is remembered that the majority of patents have but a single sheet of drawings, and that to require as many as ten sheets is quite an exception, the magnitude of the invention can be understood. The fees charged by the patent office are uniform for all cases, no matter how complex or how simple-$15 for filing the case and $20 additional on allowance of the patent. When this case was filed it was turned over for examination to an examiner, who received a salary of $1,800, and he spent six weeks in studying the case before being able to make the first action. The entire specification was twice torney. How much this cost the inventor is not known, but it is rumored that the attorney who first prepared the case received a fee of $10,000 and an allowance of $2,000 extra to pay for the drawings. While the case was pending the examiner who first had it in charge resigned from the office, and it was turned over to another assistant of the same rank This assistant went over the entire ground three times. consuming several weeels, and finally he was authorized to go to Chicago and spend a month in examining a working machine. When the request that the examiner be permitted to make the trip it was promptly refused. For argument the chief of the division then carried in the papers, making a pile some two feet thick of unfolded draw ings and typewcitten specification, and the commissioner said: "He can go." The machine is for the setting justifying and distribution of type. It comprises no less than 18,000 separate parts. | brands The patent office is a money making institution. It carns, above expenses about $200,000 per year, and now has deposited in the treasury a neat little balance of over $4,000,009. Upon this job, however, it lost about $1,000 worth of time of the various patent office of ficials before maturing into a patent and when issued the patent rule ha to be followed of preparing copies for each. The 244 sheets of drawings had to be photo-litbographed and the entire body of the specification and claims tion, as estimated by the ordinary rules a few cents over rix dollars per copy These copies are sold to the public for ten cents each, or 20 cents for the tw patents, covering the entire invention As soon as one edition is exhausted another is ordered. A great many peo ple order copies of the patents just for curiosities,-Washington Star.

DIVORCE IN TURKEY. The Only Formality Is the Return of the Bride's Dowry. Divorce in Turkey is obtained with a facility which would surprise even our ransatlantic cousins. As easily as woman, and her child, so also can the Turk open the door of his harem and send out into the world the woman who no longer pleases him. He has but to give her back her dower and personal effects. In the upper classes, however, certain legal formalities are gone through, and indeed, as the lady is usually protected by her parents, divorce is, comparatively speaking, rare. There are instances, however, in Constantinople of ladies in the highest official circles who are not yet very far advanced in years, who have been divorced twice, thrice, and even ten times Among the lower orders divorce may be described as a farce. Many girls who are not yet 20 years of age have been divorced and remarried a dozen times The surprises of divorces are among the most amusing features of Turkish social life. A very great personage, second only to the sultan in rank, unless, indeed, it be the Sheik Ul Islam, married some few years ago, when his position was very inferior to what it is at present, a highly educated lady, of good connection and fortune, but, according to his excellency's version of the story, of ungovernable temper. Within the year they were divorced and remarried. The lady soon found her new husband disagreeable, and was once more divorced. It must be remembered that if a Turk can divorce his wife, she can only divorce bim at his pleasure by making herself as unpleasant to him as possible. In former times he tied her up in a sack and had her dropped into the Bosphorus. Today he divorces her.

To return to the lady in question The next time she was heard of by her friends was as a teacher in the Mohammedan high school for girls at Scutari A few years back she was selected as governess for the children of the khediva, and is now her highness' private secretary, in which quality she accompanied her imperial mistress to Constantinople last year and actually found herself scated at a state banquet at Yildiz Kiosk next to the third wife of her first husbad, who quietly asked her who she was. Tableau! The ease with which divorce can be obtained in Turkey leads to many abuses and creates a state of affairs not un like our prostitution.-Fortnightly Re-
